Charlotte, NC- On Tuesday, August 28th at 6:30pm, the Alzheimer's Association will hold a Town Hall to discuss the nation's first National Alzheimer's Plan and how it may affect you and your community.

Background:

In 2011 the Alzheimer's Association held 132 public input sessions around the country, giving the Alzheimer's community an opportunity to shape the development of the National Alzheimer's Plan. Tens of thousands of Americans participated. In the end, the sessions were about more than providing input; they were about affecting change and engaging state and federal lawmakers. The result of the input from attendees became the bedrock for the Plan and helped make Alzheimer's a national priority.

This summer, the Alzheimer's Association is again hosting community events that will help to create better public policy, and allow the Alzheimer's community to publicly voice their opinions about what is needed to create a world without Alzheimer's. The National Alzheimer's Plan has been released, so events will focus on ensuring that Congress provide the resources necessary for aggressive implementation of the Plan and that state leaders continue to support the Alzheimer's community through strong policy. Our legislators need to hear from you! Alzheimer's can't wait.
